This study retrospectively analyzed the clinical data of patients who had transcatheter PDA closure in our institute to further explore the efficacy of this technique. We included 48 consecutive patients with PDA from September 2009 to December 2017. Cardiac catheterization laboratory was first accessed via the femoral artery route, and the procedure was performed in the catheterization lab under fluoroscopic guidance. The PDA was closed by either implantable device or using coils of the Amplatzer Duct Occluder (ADO). Follow-up data were collected from medical records and telephone or face-to-face interview with the patients or their family members. Forty-eight patients underwent successful transcatheter PDA closure, and no procedure-related death occurred. Early PDA re-occlusion occurred in two patients (4.2%).
